Tips on how to behave

Here is an A to Z of how to behave in different countries. Remember these social customs when you socialise or do business in these places.

Afghanistan

Afghans tend to sit with legs crossed on the floor and it's important not to point the soles of your feet towards someone else. This is considered impolite. During meals, food is served from one dish and you must remember to eat with your right hand. You don't have to bring your host a gift.

Albania

When Albanians meet, they shake hands. Don't be surprised if they move their hands and heads a lot when talking. They like to socialise and may visit you at any time. It's perfectly acceptable to visit without an appointment.

Algeria

When you meet an Algerian you can shake hands and members of the same sex might even embrace. Like Albanians, they will make many gestures during conversations but it is considered impolite to point. Men and women tend to meet separately. If you are doing business, people won't generally spend much time with small talk and like to move quickly to the main subject.

Argentina

At work you need to be punctual though some people may be around five minutes late. Lots of small talk is important and subjects like sport, especially soccer, are popular. Lots of people understand English in Argentina but if you can use a few words of Spanish, it will be really appreciated.

Austria

In Austria, people are quite formal when they first meet. If you go to dinner, then always remember to wait for everyone to be ready. You might like to take a small gift or flowers for the host. Austrians like punctuality and if you have a meeting, then they'll expect you to be on time.
