Task 1

Blade Runner

- 1 F Oscar Pistorius is a South African athlete. He was born in Johannesburg in 1986, as the middle child of a family with Italian roots. His grandmother had emigrated to Kenya from Italy. Pistorius lost both his legs below the knee when he was only 11 months old.
- 2 ___ Despite his disability, he has been very active in sports all his life. He took up running after a rugby accident in 2004. In the same year he finished third in the 100 metres, and won the 200 metres with a new world record at the Paralympic Games in Athens. The following year he won both the 100 and 200 metre events at the World Cup, and broke his own world record. In 2006, he won the 100 and 200 metres and also came first in the 400-metre event at the World Championships. In 2007, he became the first sports person in history to set the world record for all three distances. During his career, Pistorius has broken his own world records more than 30 times!
- 3 ___ Pistorius usually competes with athletes who still have one functioning leg, while he has to wear artificial limbs, whose special shape earned him the nickname, 'Blade Runner'.
- 4 ___ His lifelong ambition, however, has been to compete with able-bodied athletes. He took part in his first international event in 2007, but the International Association of Athletics Federations (IAAF) banned him from competing a year later. Scientific tests in Germany showed that his artificial legs gave him 'an unfair advantage'.
- 5 ___ He successfully challenged that decision when further tests in Houston, Texas proved that he also had disadvantages which the first tests ignored. The IAAF allowed him to try for the Beijing Olympic Games in 2008, but his times were not good enough then. He did, however, enter the Beijing Paralympic Games, and became the first runner ever to win gold in all three short-distance races.
- 6 ___ 2011 was a turning point for Pistorius: he successfully qualified for the 2011 World Championships and the 2012 London Olympic Games in the 400 metres. He said in an interview after the qualifying race, 'I have dreamed for such a long time of competing in a major championship and this is a very proud moment in my life.'
- 7 ___ In 2006, the President of South Africa awarded him a medal for his outstanding achievements in sport. Pistorius continues to be an inspiration for people around the world.
